PROGRAM

MINNESOTA ORCHESTRA
OSMO VÄNSKÄ, CONDUCTOR
INON BARNATAN, PIANO

Jean Sibelius
(1865-1957)

En Saga, Opus 9

Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky
(1840-1893)

Concerto No. 1 in B-flat Minor for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 23
Allegro non troppo e molto maestoso
Andantino semplice
Allegro con fuoco

Inon Barnatan, piano

20-minute intermission

Ludwig van Beethoven
(1770-1827)

Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Op. 92
Poco sostenuto, Vivace
Allegretto
Presto
Allegro con brio

This program is subject to change.

Minnesota Orchestra appears by arrangement with:
Opus 3 Artists
470 Park Avenue South
New York, NY 10016
www.opus3artists.com

Leading orchestras and soloists from around the world comprise the Great Hall Series. The 2017-18 series includes Chicago Symphony Orchestra (October 28), Mariinsky Orchestra of St. Petersburg (November 9), Minnesota Orchestra (January 25), Joshua Bell, violin (February 1), and Staatskapelle Weimar (March 10). For more information about these events, including conductors, soloists, and program selections, please visit KrannertCenter.com/calendar.
THANK YOU FOR SPONSORING THIS PERFORMANCE

Krannert Center honors the spirited generosity of donors who make these performances possible. This event is supported by:

The presentation of the Minnesota Orchestra is supported by the Arts Midwest Touring Fund, a program of Arts Midwest that is funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, with additional contributions from Illinois Arts Council and the Crane Group.

Krannert Center honors the legacy of Endowed Underwriter Valentine Jobst III. His enthusiasm and commitment to the performing arts ensure that the intense beauty of classical music will continue to resonate in central Illinois.
Through their previous sponsorships and this year’s support, Endowed Sponsors Carole & Jerry Ringer continue to share their passion for the beauty and emotion of classical music with our community. Krannert Center is grateful for their ongoing support and dedication to the performing arts.

Krannert Center honors the memory of Endowed Underwriters Marilyn Pflederer Zimmerman and Vernon K. Zimmerman. Their lasting investment in the performing arts and our community will allow future generations to experience world-class performances such as this one.
JAMES ECONOMY
Special Support of Classical Music

HELEN & DANIEL RICHARDS
Twenty-Eight Previous Sponsorships

CAROL BERTHOLD
Fifteen Previous Sponsorships
Three Current Sponsorships

HARRIET & HERSCHEL CLINE
First-Time Sponsors

LOIS & ERNEST GULLERUD
Twenty-One Previous Sponsorships
Two Current Sponsorships

PEGGY & CHRISTOPHER HUSON
Six Previous Sponsorships
Two Current Sponsorships
Help support the future of the Arts. Become a Krannert Center sponsor by contacting our development team today:

KrannertCenter.com/Give • development@krannertcenter.illinois.edu • 217.333.1629

*Photo Credit: Illini Studio
†Photo Credit: Lifetouch
Jean Sibelius
Born December 8, 1865, in Tavastehus, Finland
Died September 20, 1957, in Järvenpää, Finland
En Saga, Opus 9

Premiered: February 16, 1893

In his mid-20s Sibelius studied for a year in Berlin, and then for another year in Vienna. He had at first intended to be a violinist, but in Berlin he heard the Aino Symphony of his senior compatriot Robert Kajanus (1856-1933), which was all the impetus he needed for giving a higher priority to composing, and to turn his own creative effort toward the furtherance of Finnish nationalism. Aino is one of the heroines of the Finnish national epic, the Kalevala; Sibelius’ wife was one of the numerous Finnish women named for her. Early in 1892, in Vienna, Sibelius completed the first of his own several works based on the Kalevala: a vast five-part symphony with solo singers and a male chorus depicting episodes in the life of the tragic hero Kullervo. Kajanus saw to it that the Kullervo Symphony was performed in Helsinki that April, and its success prompted him to ask Sibelius for a shorter piece that could be performed more frequently. Sibelius responded, at about the time of his wedding, in June of that year, with En Saga, in which he recycled material from an octet for winds and strings he had composed in Berlin.

The new piece was not a success when the composer conducted the premiere in Helsinki, on February 16, 1893, but nine years later, when Ferruccio Busoni invited him to present En Saga in Berlin, he subjected the score to a major revision, which made such a positive impression when he introduced it in Helsinki on November 2, 1902, that it immediately took its place in the general repertory. (Kajanus, for his part, eventually gave up composing in order to devote himself to conducting Sibelius’ works; in his last years he went to London to make the premiere recordings of several of them.)

It was not until four decades later still, when he had written the last of his works and the world had celebrated his 75th birthday, that Sibelius said anything at all about the extra-musical significance of this work. At that time (the early 1940s) he remarked, “En Saga is the expression of a state of mind. I had undergone a number of painful experiences at the time, and in no other work have I revealed myself so completely. It is for this reason that I find all literary explanations quite alien.” Still later, according to his most distinguished biographer, Erik Tawaststjerna, Sibelius “answered an inquiry from abroad by saying that if one had to find a literary or folkloristic source for En Saga the atmosphere of the piece was far closer to the [Icelandic] Eddas than to the Kalevala.”

Elemental forces

As Sibelius’ early symphonies show traces of Tchaikovsky and Borodin, En Saga might be said to owe something to such Russian works as Balakirev’s Tamara and Rimsky-Korsakov’s Skazka. (The latter title, in fact, has a meaning similar to that of En Saga, but with less fearsome connotations: “A Tale,” or “Legend,” or in some cases “A Fairy Tale.”) The freedom Sibelius gained by not attempting to tell a specific story or paint a specific picture, though, gives En Saga a universality and directness altogether beyond the scope of those charming and colorful works. This music may not actually make us “want to wrestle a polar bear,” as the enthusiastic Sibelian Olin Downes suggested some 75 years ago, but it is powerfully evocative in a more general sense, and it may touch us on deeper levels—may convey a sense of some primordial adventure—involving elemental forces rather than individuals, and both tragic and exhilarating in its fierce urgency.

The themes, strong and persistent, seem to grow directly out of one another, in the nature of metamorphoses. The rhythms are hypnotic, the darkish orchestral coloring (with a bass drum replacing, rather than augmenting, the timpani) as deftly achieved as anything from Rimsky-Korsakov, Strauss, or Ravel. The overall effect is one of striking originality, a style as unlikely to be successfully imitated or duplicated as it is to be mistaken for that of anyone but Sibelius himself.

Instrumentation: 2 flutes (1 doubling piccolo), 2 clarinets, 2 bassoons, 4 horns, 3 trumpets, 3 trombones, tuba, bass drum, cymbals, triangle, and strings

"There burst from Rubinstein’s mouth a mighty torrent of words. He spoke quietly at first, then he waxed hot, and finally he resembled Zeus hurling thunderbolts. It seems that my concerto was utterly worthless, absolutely unplayable. Certain passages were so commonplace and awkward they could not be improved, and the piece as a whole was bad, trivial, vulgar. I had stolen this from somebody and that from somebody else, so that only two or three pages were good for anything and all the rest should be wiped out or radically rewritten."

a triumphant premiere

Stung (and furious), Tchaikovsky refused to change a note, erased the dedication to Rubinstein, and instead dedicated the concerto to the German pianist-conductor Hans von Bülow, who had championed his music. Bülow promptly took the concerto on a tour of the United States, and it was in Boston on October 25, 1875, that Tchaikovsky’s First Piano Concerto was heard for the first time.

It was a huge success on that occasion, and Bülow played it repeatedly in this country to rhapsodic reviews. A critic in Boston, taking note of that success, described the concerto as an “extremely difficult, strange, wild, ultra-modern Russian Concerto,” but back in Russia the composer read the press clippings and was beside himself with happiness: “Think what healthy appetites these Americans must have! Each time Bülow was obliged to repeat the whole finale of my concerto! Nothing like that happens in our country.”

Rubinstein eventually saw the error of his initial condemnation and became one of the concerto’s great champions. (It should be noted, though, that in 1889—perhaps more aware of Rubinstein’s criticisms than he cared to admit—Tchaikovsky did in fact take the concerto through a major revision, and it is in this form that we know it today).

a famous, ephemeral opening allegro non troppo e molto maestoso. The concerto has one of the most dramatic beginnings in all the literature, ringing with horn fanfares and cannonades of huge piano chords, followed by one of Tchaikovsky’s Great Tunes, in which that horn fanfare is transformed into a flowing melody for strings. This opening has become extremely famous, but this introductory section has many quirks. It is in the “wrong” key (D-flat major), and—however striking it may be—it never returns in any form: Tchaikovsky simply abandons all this tremendous material when he gets to the main section of the movement.

This “real” beginning, marked Allegro con spirito, is finally in the correct key of B-flat minor, and the piano’s skittering main subject is reportedly based on a tune Tchaikovsky heard a blind beggar whistle at a fair in the Ukraine. The expected secondary material quickly appears—a chorale-like theme for winds and a surging, climbing figure for strings—though Tchaikovsky evades expectations by including multiple cadenzas for the soloist in this movement. The piano writing is of the greatest difficulty (much of it in great hammered octaves), and the movement drives to a dramatic close.

andantino semplice. The Andantino simplice is aptly named, for this truly is simple music in the best sense of that term: over pizzicato chords, solo flute sings the gentle main theme, an island of calm after the searing first movement. A scherzo-like central episode marked Prestissimo leads to the return of the opening material and a quiet close.

allegro con fuoco. The finale is also well named, for here is music full of fire. It is a rondo based on the piano’s nervous, dancing main theme, and while calmer episodes break into this furious rush, the principal impression this music makes is of white-hot energy, and this “strange, wild, ultra-modern Russian Concerto” rushes to a knock-out close that is just as impressive to audiences today as it was to that first Boston audience in 1875.

Instrumentation: solo piano with orchestra comprising 2 flutes, 2 oboes, 2 clarinets, 2 bassoons, 4 horns, 2 trumpets, 3 trombones, timpani and strings

Program note by Eric Bromberger

LUDWIG VAN BEETHOVEN
Born December 16, 1770, in Bonn, Germany
Died March 26, 1827, in Vienna, Austria

Symphony No. 7 in A Major, Opus 92

Premiered: December 8, 1813

Beethoven turned 40 in December 1810, and things were going very well. True, his hearing had deteriorated to the point where he was virtually deaf, but he was still riding that white-hot explosion of creativity that has become known, for better or worse, as his “heroic” style.

re-imagining music

Over the decade-long span of that style, 1803 to 1813, Beethoven essentially re-imagined music and its possibilities. The works that crystallized the heroic style—the Eroica and the Fifth Symphony—unleashed a level of violence and darkness previously unknown in music and then triumphed over them. In these symphonies, music became a matter not of polite discourse but of conflict, struggle, and resolution.
In the fall of 1811, Beethoven began a new symphony, his Seventh, which would differ sharply from those two famous predecessors. Gone is the sense of cataclysmic struggle and hard-won victory. Instead, this music is infused from its first instant with a mood of pure celebration.

Such a spirit has inevitably produced interpretations as to what this symphony is “about”: Berlioz heard in it a peasants’ dance, Wagner called it “the apotheosis of the dance,” and more recently Maynard Solomon has suggested that the Seventh is the musical representation of a festival, a brief moment of pure spiritual liberation.

But it may be safest to leave the issue of meaning aside and instead listen to the Seventh simply as music. There had never been music like this before, nor has there been since: this symphony contains more energy than any other piece of music ever written. Much has been made (correctly) of Beethoven’s ability to transform small bits of theme into massive symphonic structures, but here he begins not so much with theme as with rhythm: tiny figures, almost scraps of rhythm. Gradually he releases the energy locked up in these small figures and from them creates one of the mightiest symphonies ever written.

small ideas transformed

poco sostenuto–vivace. The first movement opens with a slow introduction so long that it almost becomes a separate movement of its own. Tremendous chords punctuate the slow beginning, which gives way to a poised duet for oboes. The real effect of this long Poco sostenuto, however, is to coil the energy that will be unleashed in the true first movement, and Beethoven conveys this rhythmically: the meter of the introduction is a rock-solid (even square) 4/4, but the main body of the movement, marked Vivace, transforms this into a light-footed 6/8. This Vivace begins in what seems a most unpromising manner, however, as woodwinds toot out a simple dotted 6/8 rhythm and the solo flute announces the first theme. This simple dotted rhythm saturates virtually every measure of the movement, as theme, as accompaniment, as motor rhythm, always hammering into our consciousness. At the climax, horns sail majestically to the close as the orchestra thunders out that rhythm one final time.

allegretto. The second movement, in A minor, is one of Beethoven’s most famous slow movements, but the debate continues as to whether it really is a slow movement. Beethoven could not decide whether to mark it Andante, a walking tempo, or Allegretto, a moderately fast pace. He finally decided on the latter, though the actual pulse is somewhere between those two. This movement too is built on a short rhythmic pattern, in this case the first five notes: long-short-short-long-long—and this pattern repeats here almost as obsessively as the pattern of the first movement. The opening sounds like a series of static chords—the theme itself occurs quietly inside those chords—and Beethoven simply repeats this theme, varying it as it proceeds. The central episode in A major moves gracefully along smoothly-flowing triplets before a little fugato on the opening rhythms builds to a great climax. The movement winds down on the woodwinds’ almost skeletal reprise of the fundamental rhythm.

presto. The scherzo explodes to life on a theme full of grace notes, powerful accents, flying staccatos and timpani explosions. This alternates with a trio section for winds reportedly based on an old pilgrims’ hymn, though no one, it seems, has been able to identify that hymn exactly. Beethoven offers a second repeat of the trio, then seems about to offer a third before five abrupt chords drive the movement to its close.
allegro con brio. These chords set the stage for the finale, again built on the near-obsessive treatment of a short rhythmic pattern, in this case the movement’s opening four-note fanfare. This pattern punctuates the entire movement: it shapes the beginning of the main theme, and its stinging accents thrust the music forward continuously as this movement almost boils over with energy. The ending is remarkable: above growling cellos and basses (which rock along on a two-note ostinato for 28 measures), the opening theme drives to a climax that Beethoven marks fff, a dynamic marking he almost never used. This conclusion is virtually Bacchanalian in its wild power. No matter how many times we’ve heard it, it remains one of the most exciting moments in all of music. Beethoven led the first performance of the Seventh Symphony in Vienna on December 8, 1813—a huge success, with the audience demanding that the second movement be repeated.

Instrumentation: 2 flutes, 2 oboes, 2 clarinets, 2 bassoons, 2 horns, 2 trumpets, timpani, and strings

_Program note by Eric Bromberger_
OSMO VÄNSKÄ, MUSIC DIRECTOR AND CONDUCTOR

Finnish conductor Osmo Vänskä, the Minnesota Orchestra’s tenth music director, is renowned internationally for his compelling interpretations of the standard, contemporary and Nordic repertoires. He has led the Orchestra on five major European tours—most recently on a four-country circuit in 2016—as well as a historic tour to Cuba in 2015 that was the first by an American orchestra since the thaw in Cuban-American diplomatic relations. He has also led the ensemble on numerous tours to communities across Minnesota. This month he is leading the Orchestra on a Midwest tour, performing on the Chicago Symphony Orchestra’s Symphony Center Presents series and visiting the campuses of Indiana University and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign for residencies and concerts.

Vänskä’s recording projects with the Minnesota Orchestra have met with great success, including a cycle of the complete Sibelius symphonies, the second album of which won the 2014 Grammy Award for Best Orchestral Performance. Their newest album, featuring Mahler’s Fifth Symphony, has been nominated for a 2018 Grammy Award in the same category. Other recent releases include an album of in-concert recordings of Sibelius’ Kullervo and Finlandia and Kortekangas’ Migrations; two albums of Beethoven piano concertos featuring Yevgeny Sudbin; a two-CD Tchaikovsky set featuring pianist Stephen Hough; To Be Certain of the Dawn, composed by Stephen Paulus with libretto by Michael Dennis Browne; and a particularly widely-praised Beethoven symphonies cycle, of which individual discs were nominated for a Grammy and a Classic FM Gramophone award.

As a guest conductor, Vänskä has received extraordinary praise for his work with many of the world’s leading orchestras. In 2014 he became the Iceland Symphony Orchestra’s principal guest conductor; since then he has been named the ensemble’s honorary conductor. He is also conductor laureate of the Lahti Symphony Orchestra, which, during two decades as music director, he transformed into one of Finland’s flagship orchestras, attracting worldwide attention for performances and for award-winning Sibelius recordings on the BIS label. He began his music career as a clarinetist, holding major posts with the Helsinki Philharmonic and the Turku Philharmonic.

For more information, visit minnesotaorchestra.org.
INON BARNATAN, PIANO

“One of the most admired pianists of his generation,” according to The New York Times, Inon Barnatan is celebrated for his poetic sensibility, musical intelligence, and consummate artistry. He was a recipient of Lincoln Center’s Martin E. Segal Award in 2015, recognizing “young artists of exceptional accomplishment,” as well as the prestigious Avery Fisher Career Grant in 2009. A regular performer with many of the world’s most celebrated orchestras and conductors, he recently completed his third and final season as the inaugural Artist-in-Association of the New York Philharmonic, a position created by former Philharmonic Music Director Alan Gilbert, who calls him “the complete artist: a wonderful pianist, a probing intellect, passionately committed, and a capable contemporary-music pianist as well.” Gilbert and Barnatan have since collaborated numerous times and are in the process of recording the complete cycle of Beethoven piano concertos with the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields, marking that orchestra’s first complete recorded Beethoven concerto cycle.

A sought-after chamber musician, Barnatan was a member of the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center’s CMS Two program from 2006 to 2009, and is still a regular performer on CMS programs at home in New York and on tour. His passion for contemporary music has led him to commission and perform many works by living composers, including premieres of works by Thomas Adès, Sebastian Currier, Avner Dorman, Matthias Pintscher, Alasdair Nicolson, Andrew Norman and others.

Barnatan’s critically acclaimed discography includes Avie and Bridge recordings of Schubert’s solo piano works, as well as Darknessse Visible, which scored a coveted place on The New York Times’ “Best of 2012” list. Barnatan’s latest album release is a live recording of Messiaen’s 90-minute masterpiece, Des canyons aux étoiles (From the Canyons to the Stars), in which he played the exceptionally challenging solo piano part with an ensemble conducted by Alan Gilbert at the Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival. In 2015 he released Rachmaninov & Chopin: Cello Sonatas on Decca Classics with Alisa Weilerstein, which earned rave reviews on both sides of the Atlantic.

For more information, visit inonbarnatan.com.
MINNESOTA ORCHESTRA

The Grammy Award-winning Minnesota Orchestra, led by Music Director Osmo Vänskä, is recognized for distinguished performances around the world, award-winning recordings, radio broadcasts, educational engagement programs, and commitment to building the orchestral repertoire of the future.

Founded in 1903 as the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, the ensemble played its first regional tour in 1907 and made its New York City debut in 1912 at Carnegie Hall, where it has performed regularly ever since. Outside the United States, the Orchestra has played concerts in Australia, Canada, Europe, the Far East, Latin America, and the Middle East. In 2015 Vänskä and the Orchestra performed two historic concerts and collaborated in educational projects in Havana, Cuba, becoming the first major American orchestra to perform in the island nation since the United States and Cuban governments announced steps to normalize relations between the two countries. Under Vänskä, the ensemble has undertaken five European tours, most recently a four-country tour in August 2016, as well as numerous tours to the broader Minnesota community.

The Orchestra’s recordings have drawn acclaim since the early 1920s, when the ensemble became one of the first to be heard on disc. Under Vänskä’s leadership, the Orchestra has undertaken several acclaimed recording projects, most notably its highly-praised cycles of the Beethoven and Sibelius symphonies. Last season BIS Records released the ensemble’s two newest albums, one including Sibelius’ Kullervo and Kortekangas’ Migrations and the other featuring Mahler’s Fifth Symphony, the Grammy-nominated first album in a new series of Mahler recordings.

The Orchestra’s season encompasses nearly 175 programs annually, held primarily at Orchestra Hall in downtown Minneapolis and heard live by 300,000 individuals. The Orchestra connects with more than 85,000 music lovers annually through family concerts and educational programs including Young People’s Concerts. Through its innovative Common Chords program of week-long residency festivals, the Orchestra has been welcomed in recent seasons to the Minnesota cities of Grand Rapids, Willmar, Hibbing, Bemidji, and Detroit Lakes. The Orchestra has commissioned and/or premiered more than 300 compositions and has won 20 awards for its adventurous programming from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP).

For more information, visit minnesotaorchestra.org.
2017-18 SEASON
Osmo Vänskä, music director
  Douglas and Louise Leatherdale Music Director Chair
Sarah Hicks, principal conductor,
  Live at Orchestra Hall
Roderick Cox, associate conductor
Akiko Fujimoto, assistant conductor
Doc Severinsen, pops conductor laureate
Kevin Puts, director, Composer Institute
Dominick Argento, composer laureate
Minnesota Chorale, principal chorus
Kathy Saltzman Romey, choral advisor

FIRST VIOLINS
Erin Keefe, concertmaster
  Elbert L. Carpenter Chair
Susie Park, first associate concertmaster
  Lillian Nippert and Edgar F. Zelle Chair
Roger Frisch, associate concertmaster
  Frederick B. Wells Chair
Rui Du, assistant concertmaster
  Loring M. Staples, Sr., Chair
Pamela Arnstein
David Brubaker
Rebecca Corruccini
Sarah Grimes
Helen Chang Haertzen
Céline Leathead
Rudolf Lekhter
Joanne Opgenorth
Milana Elise Reiche
Deborah Serafini

SECOND VIOLINS
Peter McGuire, principal
  Sumner T. McKnight Chair
Jonathan Magness, associate principal
Cecilia Belcher, assistant principal
Taichi Chen
Jean Marker De Vere
Aaron Janse
Natsuki Kumagai
Ben Odhner
Catherine Schubilske
Michael Sutton
James Garlick *

VIOLAS
Rebecca Albers, principal
  Reine H. Myers Chair
Richard Marshall, co-principal
  Douglas and Louise Leatherdale Chair
Michael Adams +
Sam Bergman
Sifei Cheng
Kenneth Freed
Megan Tam
Thomas Turner
Gareth Zehngut
David Auerbach *
Jennifer Strom *

CELLOS
Anthony Ross, principal
  John and Elizabeth Bates Cowles Chair
Silver Ainomäe, associate principal
  John and Barbara Sibley Boatwright Chair
Beth Rapier, assistant principal
  Marion E. Cross Chair
Katja Linfield
Marcia Peck
Pitnarry Shin
Arek Tesarczyk
  Roger and Cynthia Britt Chair
BASSES
Kristen Bruya, principal
   Jay Phillips Chair
Kathryn Nettleman, acting associate principal
   Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Stepanek Chair
William Schrickel, assistant principal
Robert Anderson
Matthew Frischman
Brian Liddle
David Williamson

FLUTES
Adam Kuenzel, principal
   Eileen Bigelow Chair
Greg Milliren, associate principal
   Henrietta Rauenhorst Chair
Wendy Williams
Roma Duncan

PICCOLO
Roma Duncan
   Alene M. Grossman Chair

OBOES
John Snow, principal
   Grace B. Dayton Chair
Kathryn Greenbank *, acting associate principal
Julie Gramolini Williams
Marni J. Hougham

ENGLISH HORN
Marni J. Hougham
   John Gilman Ordway Chair

CLARINETES
Gabriel Campos Zamora, principal
   I.A. O’Shaughnessy Chair
Gregory T. Williams, associate principal
   Ray and Doris Mithun Chair
David Pharris
Timothy Zavadil

E-FLAT CLARINET
Gregory T. Williams

BASS CLARINET
Timothy Zavadil

BASSOONS
Fei Xie, principal
   Norman B. Mears Chair
Mark Kelley, co-principal
   Marjorie F. and George H. Dixon Chair
J. Christopher Marshall
Norbert Nielubowski

CONTRABASSOON
Norbert Nielubowski

HORNS
Michael Gast, principal
   John Sargent Pillsbury Chair
Herbert Winslow, associate principal
   Gordon C. and Harriet D. Paske Chair
Brian Jensen
Ellen Dinwiddie Smith
Bruce Hudson

TRUMPETS
Manny Laureano, principal
   Mr. and Mrs. Archibald G. Bush Chair
Douglas C. Carlsen, associate principal
   Rudolph W. and Gladys Davis Miller Chair
Robert Dorer
Charles Lazarus

TROMBONES
R. Douglas Wright, principal
   Star Tribune Chair
Kari Sundström
   William C. and Corinne J. Dietrich Chair
BASS TROMBONE
Andrew Chappell

TUBA
Steven Campbell, principal
  Robert Machray Ward Chair
Jason Tanksley
  Rosemary and David Good Fellow

TIMPANI
Jason Arkis, acting principal
  Dimitri Mitropoulos Chair
Kevin Watkins, acting associate principal

PERCUSSION
Brian Mount, principal
  Friends of the Minnesota Orchestra Chair
Kevin Watkins, acting associate principal
  Opus Chair

HARP
Kathy Kienzle, principal
  Bertha Boynton Bean Chair

PIANO, HARPSCICHORD, AND CELESTA
Open, principal
  Markell C. Brooks Chair

LIBRARIANS
Maureen Conroy, principal
Eric Sjostrom, associate principal
Valerie Little, assistant principal

PERSONNEL MANAGER
Kris Arkis

ASSISTANT PERSONNEL MANAGER
Janelle Lanz

TECHNICAL DIRECTOR
Joel Mooney

STAGE MANAGERS
Don Hughes
  Matthew Winiecki

LIGHTING TECHNICIAN
Michael Abramson

SOUND TECHNICIAN
Jay Perlman

---

+ Leave of Absence
* Replacement

Many string players participate in a voluntary system of revolving seating. Section string players are listed in alphabetical order.